Vent-A-Hood Debuts New Showroom Displays

RICHARDSON, Texas – Vent-A-Hood, the company that created the modern residential range hood, and its network of distributors across the U.S. and Canada are rolling out new showroom displays to top appliance dealers, effective immediately. For a limited time, preferred pricing is available on all orders.

Since introducing the high-end displays at Vent-A-Hood's National Distributor Conference on Oct. 28, the company has processed 32 orders for its largest units, which will be delivered to showrooms across North America by the end of the year.

"The reaction has been incredible," said Blake Woodall, general partner of Vent-A-Hood. "The new display program signals our commitment to showcase an iconic brand, our design versatility and the options that customers have to personalize an appliance to their own tastes and desires."

The new displays are true furniture pieces and feature finished white cabinetry with traditional styling, crown molding, fluorescent lighting and fully-functional range hoods. Available in single (56"), double (95") and triple (104") widths, the new displays offer a variety of range hood styles. The triple unit, which has captured the most orders, also features an interactive DVD as well as a range hood canopy from every Vent-A-Hood product line.

"We have taken the range hood shopping experience to a new level," said Mark Klein, director of sales for Vent-A-Hood. "The best appliances deserve the best displays. And kitchen designers and homeowners will love seeing our range hoods up close in these settings."

Vent-A-Hood distributors are backing the program and personally handling installation of all units. Delivery time is 4 to 6 weeks for the new displays and can be tailored with canopies that meet the buying patterns and design styles of the region. Appliance dealers can purchase a new display from their official Vent-A-Hood distributor.
